Career Management Plus

Self-assessment is the first step in the career planning process. It can be a valuable tool for clarifying career direction, assisting in career transition and capitalizing on innate preferences that contribute to job satisfaction and success.

Your results have been generated from your responses to The Birkman Method[®] assessment. This comprehensive assessment measures behavioral traits, motivation, stress and occupational interests. The Birkman Method is backed by over 60 years of research and application.

Your Career Management Plus report is designed to give you a deeper understanding of yourself and the career options that are your best fit. Your report can help confirm career choices you are making, show you alternative career choices and build your personal awareness of the strengths, motivators and working environments that will help you succeed.

As you review your results, do not let them limit your career exploration. Rather, use your results as a guide for further exploring different career options that hold the highest potential for your success and well-being. With the assistance of a qualified career professional, you can develop career strategies and techniques to achieve your career needs.

Using the Career Management Plus

You are unique. Your interests and behaviors define who you are and tell you how you are motivated. Imagine the possibilities if you were able to clearly communicate not only your skills, but also your most effective behavior for elevated performance.

Career Management Plus examines your relational characteristics from multiple angles and uses that information to highlight key career areas that will provide you with the greatest potential for success.

The first portion of your report explores five important dimensions of who you are:

Areas of Interests	what you like; activities you prefer
Strength Behavior	how you relate to the world around you; the behavior other people see
Motivational Needs	the support you need from others and the environment around you
Stress Behavior	negative, reactionary behavior when frustrated and your needs are not met
Ideal Work Environment	environment that offers the most ideal fit based on how you formulate solutions and what you value within an organization

This is followed by a detailed profile analysis comparing your degree of match to successful individuals in various Job Families and Job Titles.

By combining your personal profile with your skills and abilities, you are able to gain a complete understanding on how you can contribute to the career best suited for you.

The Colors of The Birkman Method

To help simplify information, the Career Management Report uses colors throughout each area. This is to help you identify your own characteristics and also understand the differences that exist with each area. Since every individual is different, it is unlikely that you will see one color consistently throughout your report. Your unique color combination is the most important as it describes your unique attributes and provides a roadmap to reach your greatest potential.

MOTIVATIONAL
NEEDS

Your Motivational Needs indicate that you prefer:

- friendly, yet casual relationships
- specific direction and control
- demanding projects
- defined scheduling

To access these attributes within an organization, ask questions such as:

- how dynamic is the working environment? does change occur often?
- are there set policies and procedures in place for operating?
- will the position include having to address large groups of people?
- what types of support systems will be in place to help me be successful in this role?
- describe the leadership style of the person to whom I will be reporting

STRESS
BEHAVIOR

When frustrated and under stress, you may:

- be over-controlling
- become resistive to change
- conform to prevailing thoughts
- become quietly resistive
- appear rigid

To manage this stress behavior when it occurs:

- set proactive agendas that are yours rather than reacting to agendas set for you
- experiment with small changes in plans so you can more readily adapt to larger changes
- practice new, cutting-edge approaches on familiar tasks
- avoid withdrawing to avoid conflict, express your thoughts persuasively
- risk a little by trying new innovative approaches

- offer flexible rules and policies
- encourage competitiveness and individualized rewards
- promotes influential leadership

Look for these types of attributes when assessing work environments:

- are relationships considered to be the most important part of any process?
- does the department/company recognize and reward for individual performance?
- does the department/company value energy and enthusiasm?
- does the environment allow for flexibility within the boundaries of standard operating procedures?

Job Families

The Job Families Report is a comparative profile analysis. Each job family is based on multiple profiles that have been created by examining individuals in similar roles that have demonstrated success. Your own scores and job strengths are determined by comparing you to those profiles to identify the environments that offer the greatest potential of success.

Looking at your own bars, use the longest bars to help target specific fields or types of organizations that have the best potential fit for you.

You may find that your bars are not long. This indicates that you may not have matched the profile to a significant degree. You will find that if you have this pattern, you can identify with different groups easily and have the flexibility to fit into many environments. The challenge is that one environment does not influence your career decision quickly.
